LCEO preparing for winter storm to impact northwest Ohio

Road maintenance crews are gearing up for the upcoming winter storm expected to impact Lucas County Wednesday. Weather forecasts are calling for four to eight inches of snow to fall from early Wednesday morning into the evening.

Our garage is doing final inspections of all vehicles and equipment, topping off trucks with salt and deicers, putting down brine and reviewing all phase one and phase two snow routes for drivers.

Lucas County Engineer Mike Pniewski will be available Wednesday for media interviews (virtual or in-person) to provide updates on snow removal efforts on all county roads. We will be providing updates on social media throughout the day on road conditions.

Travel conditions will begin to decline after the morning commute and the heaviest snow is expected Wednesday afternoon. We recommend staying home if you can while our crews are out on the road. If you must go to work, #LeaveEarlyLeaveSafe and on your way home, #GoSlow and #DontCrowdThePlow and give our crews room to work.

Follow us on Facebook and Twitter at Lucas County Engineer's Office for updates.
